Realtors to honor inn legend

By The Commercial Appeal

March 17, 2005

The Memphis Area Association of Realtors is bestowing its highest honor on the late Kemmons Wilson, "the father of modern innkeeping," in a ceremony March 31 at University of Memphis Holiday Inn, 3700 Central.

C. Kemmons Wilson Jr. and other family members will accept the Legacy Award, which is given by the MAAR Commercial Council.

The award is given posthumously to a commercial real estate professional who "had a tremendous influence on the local industry."

MAAR will also present Pinnacle Awards to the area's 25 top-producing brokers and will recognize brokers of the year in several areas, including office, commercial, retail and multi-family residential.

Tickets are $75 and may be ordered by downloading the order form from www.maarcommercial.com or by calling 818-2434.

MAAR is the largest real estate trade organization in the Mid-South, representing more than 4,300 people working in all facets of the industry.
